Corresponding Keyence controller allows real-time data transfer to PLC and SPC.

3 laser profilometers are used to inspect each module.

Bent and more susceptible to failure, but the adhesive holding the pinched glass together is also under stress and module thickness at the outer perimeter versus the inner body. Increased edge pinch means not only is the glass easier process optimization upstream and assures product will be capable of frame application.